(1) Estimate

(2) Program

* The general government balance is obtained through the consolidation of the revenues and expenditures of consolidated budget (2001-2005) / central government budget (2006-2008), local administrations, extra-budgetary funds, social security institutions, the unemployment insurance fund and revolving funds.

* The general government balance is calculated by recording the public resource as a revenue item in the account of the public unit which first generates the flow, as an expenditure item in the account of the public unit which performs the final expenditure. Thus, deficit (or surplus) figures vary as to budget classifications, while the total balance figures are kept unchanged.
